

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
DISTRICT OF NEVADA

Rhenetta Belcher-Bey,

Plaintiff

v.

City of Las Vegas, Las Vegas Metropolitan Police Department, and Officer Eric Brown,

Defendants

Base Case No.:
2:12-cv-01829-JAD-CWH

Member Case No.:
2:12-cv-01909-JAD-CWH

Order Granting Motion for Summary Judgment
[Doc. 38]

These consolidated civil-rights actions arise from the traffic stop of plaintiff Rhenetta Belcher-Bey, who was pulled over by Las Vegas Metropolitan Police Department Officer Eric Brown for driving with fictitious license plates.¹ Belcher-Bey—who believes she is not bound by Nevada’s state laws because she is a citizen of the Mu’ur Republic, a self-proclaimed sovereign nation—was driving a vehicle that bore Mu’ur Republic license plates. She told the officer she did not have a Nevada driver’s license and presented instead her “Moorish nationality ID card,” issued by Queen Chief Shugpret. She was removed from the vehicle, handcuffed, and detained for 20 minutes while the officer investigated her identity and then released her.

Belcher-Bey sues the LVMPD and Officer Brown alleging an illegal traffic stop and that Officer Brown used excessive force in her detention.² LVMPD and Officer Brown move for summary judgment on all claims.³ Belcher-Bey offers only a two-sentence response to this motion and concedes “[t]here is no real issue of fact to be decided at trial.”⁴ Having carefully considered the

¹ See Doc. 1 at 10; see also Doc. 38 at 10.

² See id. at 10; see also Doc. 15 (order to consolidate).

³ Doc. 38. I find this motion appropriate for resolution without oral argument. LR 78-2.

⁴ Doc. 40 at 2.

record and law, I grant summary judgment in the defendants' favor.

Background

Belcher-Bey claims to be an ambassador and public minister in the Moorish Holy Temple of Science of the World.⁵ She subscribes to the mistaken beliefs that (1) she is not required to register her vehicle under state law, display state-issued license plates, or carry her Nevada driver's license because she is not driving in a commercial capacity and the state of Nevada is merely a corporation she has not chosen to contract with; (2) therefore, Nevada's traffic laws do not apply to her (she has only a constitutional obligation to exercise "due care" when driving); and (3) LVMPD officers have no right to enforce the traffic laws against her—only the Sheriff himself may, as "He's the only law in the land."⁶

After Belcher-Bey was stopped by LVMPD Officer Brown for driving a vehicle with fictitious license plates, she filed this challenge to the officer's traffic stop and her 20-minute detention, claiming the officer was "impersonating an officer of the court" and a Sheriff, violated "the principal [sic] of separation of powers," and effectuated a "false arrest" because he "had no first-hand observation of a felony being committed."⁷ She claims that Officer Brown grabbed her arm and twisted her wrist while removing her from her vehicle and placed her in handcuffs, leaving her with bruised her wrists and a sprained wrist, elbow, and shoulder, necessitating an emergency room visit.⁸ Belcher-Bey seeks damages including "$250,000 for denial of proper warrants, $250,000 for slavery (forced compliance to contracts not held), [and] $250,000 for denied provisions

⁵ Doc. 1 at 10; see also Murakush Caliphate of Amexem Inc. v. New Jersey, 790 F. Supp. 2d 241, 272 (D.N.J. 2011) (collecting cases and characterizing this organization as, inter alia, an "imaginary creation[]").

⁶ Doc. 38 at 32–34; see also Doc. 1 at 11 (attesting that she "was exercising no privilege that must be licensed and registered.").

⁷ Doc. 1 at 11–12. In addition, she alleges in her complaint that Officer Brown's citations "violate[] Rule 12(b)(6): lack of subject matter jurisdiction, lack of personal jurisdiction, insufficient process, [and] insufficient service of process [and] therefore Brown fails to state a claim upon which relief can be granted." Id. These are misplaced affirmative defenses, not claims appropriate for inclusion in a complaint. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b).

⁸ Id. at 12.

1 in the constitution”⁹

2 Belcher-Bey freely acknowledges that her vehicle was not registered under Nevada law and
3 was displaying instead a Mu’ur Republic license plate.¹⁰ Her verified complaint¹¹ states
4 unequivocally that she told the officer during the stop that she did not have a Nevada driver’s
5 license, and she handed him instead her Moorish ID card.¹² She was cited for fictitious plates, 6 driving an unregistered vehicle, and not possessing a valid driver’s license. Discovery is closed, and 7 Belcher-Bey has produced no authenticated documents to validate her claims of physical injury.

8 LVMPD and Officer Brown argue that Belcher-Bey’s many allegations are best distilled into 9 two legal claims: one for an unlawful traffic stop and detention, another for excessive force.¹³ After 10 a careful review, I agree that these legal theories offer the most liberal categorization of Belcher-
11 Bey’s claims, and none is sustainable under the undisputed facts in this case.¹⁴

12 Discussion

13 Summary judgment is appropriate when the pleadings and admissible evidence “show there 14 is no genuine issue as to any material fact and that the movant is entitled to judgment as a matter of 15 law.”¹⁵ When considering summary judgment, the court views all facts and draws all inferences in 18 ⁹ Id. at 13.

19 ¹⁰ Id. at 10.

20 ¹¹ Because the allegations in the complaint are “subscribed, affirmed, [and] acknowledged”
21 by oath before a notary, I treat Belcher-Bey’s complaint as a verified one. See Doc. 1 at 13.

22 ¹² Id. at 10-12.

23 ¹³ Doc. 38 at 7.

24 ¹⁴ I liberally construe all of the plaintiff’s pro se motions and pleadings. See Bernhardt v.
25 L.A. Cnty., 339 F.3d 920, 925 (9th Cir. 2003). I also note that Belcher-Bey was provided with the 26 notice required under Rand v. Rowland, 154 F.3d 952 (9th Cir. 1998) (en banc), Wyatt v. Terhune, 315 F.3d 1108 (9th Cir. 2003), and Klinge v. Eikenberry, 849 F.2d 409 (9th Cir. 1988), even though she is not a prisoner plaintiff. Doc. 39.

27 ¹⁵ See Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 330 (1986) (citing Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(c)).

the light most favorable to the nonmoving party.¹⁶ If reasonable minds could differ on material facts, summary judgment is inappropriate because summary judgment’s purpose is to avoid unnecessary trials when the facts are undisputed, and the case must then proceed to the trier of fact.¹⁷

If the moving party satisfies Rule 56 by demonstrating the absence of any genuine issue of material fact, the burden shifts to the party resisting summary judgment to “set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue for trial.”¹⁸ The nonmoving party “must do more than simply show that there is some metaphysical doubt as to the material facts”; she “must produce specific evidence, through affidavits or admissible discovery material, to show that” there is a sufficient evidentiary basis on which a reasonable fact finder could find in her favor.¹⁹ Rule 56(e) provides, “If a party . . . fails to properly address another party’s assertion of fact as required by Rule 56(c), the court may: (2) consider the fact undisputed for purposes of the motion; [or] (3) grant summary judgment if the motion and supporting materials—including the facts considered undisputed—show that the movant is entitled to it. . . .”

A. Belcher-Bey Concedes That There Are No Disputed Facts.

Belcher-Bey has not merely failed to address defendants’ statement of undisputed facts; she affirmatively responded to it by stating “[t]here is no real issue of fact to be decided at trial.”²⁰ I thus consider the following facts established by the defendants to be undisputed for purposes of this motion: (1) on August 16, 2012, Belcher-Bey was traveling on Arden Street in Las Vegas, Nevada; (2) she was driving a vehicle that was not registered as required by NRS 482.545(1); (3) Belcher-Bey told Officer Brown she did not have a valid driver’s license; (4) the vehicle she was driving bore a ¹⁶ Kaiser Cement Corp. v. Fishbach & Moore, Inc., 793 F.2d 1100, 1103 (9th Cir. 1986).

¹⁷ Warren v. City of Carlsbad, 58 F.3d 439, 441 (9th Cir. 1995); see also Nw. Motorcycle Ass’n v. U.S. Dep’t of Agric., 18 F.3d 1468, 1471 (9th Cir. 1994).

¹⁸ Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 256 (1986); Celotex, 477 U.S. at 323.

¹⁹ Orr, 285 F.3d at 783 (internal citations omitted); Bhan v. NME Hosps., Inc., 929 F.2d 1404, 1409 (9th Cir. 1991); Anderson, 477 U.S. at 248–49.

²⁰ Doc. 40 at 2.

1 fictitious license plate issued by the Mu'ur Republic, a purportedly sovereign nation that does not
 2 recognize the laws of the state of Nevada; (5) Officer Brown asked her to exit the vehicle, and he
 3 handcuffed her; (6) Belcher-Bey remained handcuffed for less than 20 minutes, after which she was 4 issued 3 citations and permitted to leave; (7) Belcher-Bey was not taken to jail,²¹ and her vehicle was 5 not towed; and (8) during discovery, Belcher-Bey provided no authenticated medical evidence
 6 supporting any claim of physical injury during the incident.²² I now consider whether, on this 7 evidentiary record, Belcher-Bey can state her constitutional claims.

8 B. The Undisputed Facts Fail to Support Belcher-Bey's Claims.

9 The undisputed facts do not rise to the level necessary to establish that Belcher-Bey suffered 10 a constitutional violation. Even if she could state a constitutional violation on this factual record, the 11 LVMPD is also entitled to summary judgment on her claims against it for the additional reason that 12 there is no evidence that Officer Brown acted pursuant to an official LVMPD policy, practice, or 13 procedure as required by Monell v. Department of Social Services.

14 1. Belcher-Bey cannot establish that she was unlawfully stopped.

15 Summary judgment is appropriate on Belcher-Bey's Fourth Amendment violation claims
 16 based on an allegedly unlawful traffic stop and detention. In her verified complaint, Belcher-Bey 17 avers that, "just to 'traffic stop' [her]," Officer Brown "turned on his emergency lights" and 18 "impersonated a government official on emergency business."²³ Because Officer Brown "had no 19 warrant and no first-hand observation of a felony being committed," she contends, he conducted a 20 "false arrest."²⁴ Belcher-Bey's subjective characterization of Officer Brown's conduct is not 21 supported by the factual record, and the facts she attests to demonstrate that the officer conducted a 22 lawful traffic stop.

23 ²¹ Defendants offer as another "undisputed fact" that "Plaintiff was not arrested." See Doc.
 24 38 at 6. This is a legal conclusion, not a fact.

25 ²² Docs. 38 at 5-6; 40 at 2.

26 ²³ Doc. 1 at 10-11.

27 ²⁴ Doc. 1 at 11.

1 The Fourth Amendment requires only reasonable suspicion to conduct an investigative traffic
 2 stop.²⁵ “A traffic violation alone is sufficient to establish reasonable suspicion” to validate a traffic
 3 stop.²⁶ Under the rule of Terry v. Ohio, an officer may order the driver out of a vehicle during a
 4 traffic stop.²⁷

5 Officer Brown plainly had reasonable suspicion that Belcher-Bey was violating Nevada’s
 6 traffic laws. Nevada law prohibits the operation of an unregistered motor vehicle and the displaying 7 of fictitious license plates.²⁸ It is also “unlawful for any person to drive a motor vehicle upon a 8 public street or highway in [Nevada] without being the holder of a valid driver’s license,” and every 9 licensee must have her driver’s license in her “immediate possession at all times when driving a 10 motor vehicle.”²⁹ The uncontested evidence in this case demonstrates that Officer Brown pulled 11 Belcher-Bey over because the vehicle she was driving on public roads bore fictitious plates.³⁰ He 12 then asked her for identification and registration, and she was unable to provide either.³¹ Belcher-
 13 Bey readily admits that the vehicle was not registered and was displaying her fictitious sovereign-
 14 citizen plates from the Mu’ur Republic (which, she attests, were being utilized for “the easy
 15

16 ²⁵ U.S. v. Choudhry, 461 F.3d 1097, 1100–01 (9th Cir. 2006).

17 ²⁶ Id. at 1100 (citing Whren v. United States, 517 U.S. 806, 810 (1996), and recognizing that 18 even reasonable suspicion of a parking violation can justify an investigatory stop of a vehicle); see 19 also U.S. v. Duval, 73 Fed. Appx. 242, 244 (9th Cir. 2003) (finding reasonable suspicion for traffic 20 stop where vehicle had an expired license plate and a crumpled temporary tag affixed with duct tape on the rear window); U.S. v. Tyndal, 172 Fed. Appx. 741, 742 (9th Cir. 2006) (driving on suspended license deemed sufficient for reasonable suspicion).

21 ²⁷ See Maryland v. Wilson, 519 U.S. 408, 411 (1997) (citing Pennsylvania v. Mimms, 434 22 U.S. 106, 108–109 (1977)).

23 ²⁸ Nev. Rev. Stat. § 482.545(1) & (2); see also United States v. Rojas-Millan, 234 F.3d 464, 24 469 (9th Cir. 2000) (explaining that “A fictitious license plate does not” satisfy Nevada’s registration and license plate laws and holding that fictitious license plates gave rise to “reasonable suspicion of a violation of Nevada law” for valid stop).

25 ²⁹ Nev. Rev. Stat. §§ 483.350, 483.550(1).

26 ³⁰ Doc. 38 at 5, 62.

27 ³¹ Id. at 62; Doc. 1 at 11, lines 4-5.

1 recognition of Nationals of [their] theocratic government to any and all local city, county, state or 2 federal government officials so as NOT to confuse [their] Nationals with corporate UNITED
 3 STATES citizens”³²), and that she told Officer Brown during the stop that she did not have a valid
 4 driver’s license.³³ These undisputed facts plainly demonstrate that Officer Brown’s traffic stop of 5 Belcher-Bey was constitutionally reasonable as a matter of law.

6
 7 2. *The undisputed facts prevent Belcher-Bey from establishing an unconstitutional arrest.

8 Officer Brown’s investigatory stop did not cross the Fourth Amendment line of 9 reasonableness when he handcuffed Belcher-Bey. “There is no bright-line rule to determine when an 10 investigatory stop becomes an arrest,”³⁴ and the Ninth Circuit has recognized that the use of 11 handcuffs “substantially aggravates the intrusiveness of an otherwise routine investigatory detention
 12 and is not part of a typical Terry stop.”³⁵ Even if I assume for purposes of this motion that Officer 13 Brown’s encounter with Belcher-Bey ripened from an investigatory stop into an arrest when he 14 placed her in handcuffs, the totality of the circumstances leads me to the singular conclusion that the 15 arrest was constitutional because it was supported by probable cause.³⁶

16 The United States Supreme Court recognized in Atwater v. City of Lago Vista that “[i]f an 17 officer has probable cause to believe that an individual has committed even a very minor criminal
 18 offense in his presence, he may, without violating the Fourth Amendment, arrest the offender.”³⁷

19
 20 ³² Doc. 1 at 10.

21 ³³ Id.

22 ³⁴ Washington v. Lambert, 98 F.3d 1181, 1185 (9th Cir. 1996).

23 ³⁵ United States v. Bautista, 684 F.2d 1286, 1289 (9th Cir. 1982).

24 ³⁶ Warrantless arrest requires probable cause. See, e.g., Whiteley v. Warden, 401 U.S. 560, 25 564-66 (1971).

26 ³⁷ Atwater v. City of Lago Vista, 532 U.S. 318, 354 (2001). See also Virginia v. Moore, 553
 27 U.S. 164, 176 (2008) (finding arrest for driving on a suspended license constitutionally reasonable 28 despite state law prohibiting arrest for this offense and reasoning “that warrantless arrests for crimes committed in the presence of an arresting officer are reasonable under the Constitution, and that

1 The High Court found that the arrest of Atwater for neither wearing her seatbelt nor ensuring that her
 2 children wore theirs “satisfied constitutional requirements” because the officer “had probable cause
 3 to believe that Atwater had committed a crime in his presence.”³⁸ The Court noted that the officer 4 was “not required, but [was] authorized” to make that custodial arrest even without “determining 5 whether or not Atwater’s arrest was in some way necessary.”³⁹

6 Officer Brown was similarly authorized, but not required, to arrest Belcher-Bey. She 7 concedes that she was driving a vehicle with a fictitious license plate and no registration, and that she 8 told Officer Brown at least twice that she did not have a Nevada driver’s license. Each of these 9 offenses was an independent misdemeanor under Nevada law, and the commission of each of these 10 offenses in Officer Brown’s presence gave him probable cause to effect a custodial arrest of Belcher-
 11 Bey.⁴⁰ This conclusion is also consistent with the Ninth Circuit’s rulings in United States v. Smith
 12 and United States v. Mayo that expired or false vehicle registration can give rise to probable cause
 13 for arrest during traffic stops.⁴¹

14
 15
 16
 17 while States are free to regulate such arrests however they desire, state restrictions do not alter the 18 Fourth Amendment’s protections.”).

19 ³⁸ Id.

20 ³⁹ Id.

21 ⁴⁰ Nev. Rev. Stat. §§ 482.555(1)(b), 483.620. See also Nev. Rev. Stat. § 484A.730 (giving 22 discretion to cite or arrest for traffic violations); Nev. Rev. Stat. § 171.124 (authorizing peace officer
 23 to make an arrest for a public offense committed or attempted in the officer’s presence). NRS 24 484A.730(1) additionally authorizes peace officers to effect a custodial arrest for failure to provide 25 satisfactory proof of identity, as Belcher-Bey did when she failed to produce a Nevada driver’s license. See also Morgan v. State, 88 P.3d 837, 839 (Nev. 2004) (finding lawful arrest for misdemeanor traffic offense); cf. Knowles v. Iowa, 525 U.S. 113, 118 (1998) (suggesting, “if a police officer is not satisfied with the identification furnished by the driver, this may be a basis for arresting him rather than merely issuing a citation.”).

26 ⁴¹ United States v. Smith, 148 F. App’x 615, 616 (9th Cir. 2005) (“The invalid registration 27 gave the officers a basis to arrest Smith independent of his status as an unlicensed driver.”); United States v. Mayo, 394 F.3d 1271, 1276 (9th Cir. 2005) (stolen registration sticker on license plate gave 28 officers probable cause for arrest).

3. The undisputed facts fall short of demonstrating Officer Brown used excessive force.

Nor do the undisputed facts of this case support a § 1983 claim for excessive force. The Fourth Amendment prohibits police use of force that “is excessive under objective standards of reasonableness.”⁴² “The reasonableness of a particular use of force must be judged from the perspective of a reasonable officer on the scene, rather than with the 20/20 vision of hindsight.”⁴³ Handcuffing is typically constitutional unless the handcuffs cause injury or the arresting officer ignores complaints of discomfort.⁴⁴ The Ninth Circuit has recognized that merely claiming that pain and injury resulted from handcuffing, without authenticated medical records to support that claim, is not enough to demonstrate a genuine issue of fact to prevent summary judgment on an excessive-force claim.⁴⁵

Belcher-Bey avers that Officer Brown grabbed her hand, twisted her wrist, and pulled on her arm while demanding she exit her vehicle, causing her to suffer pain in her wrists, elbow, and shoulder.⁴⁶ She was then handcuffed and forced to sit down on the curb.⁴⁷ When she complained that she was sitting on an ant hill, Brown “gave her permission to stand,” and when she “had difficulty standing,” she claims “Brown grabbed [her] left arm and pulled her to her feet, causing severe pain in

⁴² Saucier v. Katz, 533 U.S. 194, 201–02 (2001); Fontana v. Haskin, 262 F.3d 871, 879 (9th Cir. 2001) (quoting Headwaters Forest Def. v. Cnty. of Humboldt, 240 F.3d 1185, 1199 (9th Cir. 2000), cert. granted and judgment vacated on other grounds, 534 U.S. 801 (2001)) (internal quotation marks omitted).

⁴³ Arpin v. Santa Clara Valley Transp. Agency, 261 F.3d 912, 921 (9th Cir. 2001) (quoting Graham v. Connor, 490 U.S. 386, 396 (1989)).

⁴⁴ C.B. v. City of Sonora, 730 F.3d 816, 826 (9th Cir. 2013).

⁴⁵ Arpin, 261 F.3d at 922.

⁴⁶ Doc. 1 at 11.

⁴⁷ Id.; Doc. 38 at 37.

1 [her] shoulder, elbow and wrists.”⁴⁸ She remained handcuffed for less than 20 minutes.⁴⁹ Belcher-
 2 Bey does not dispute that, during discovery, she provided no admissible medical evidence to 3 corroborate her claims of physical injury.⁵⁰

4 Though they demonstrate that Officer Brown used some force, the facts of Belcher-Bey’s
 5 encounter with Officer Brown do not rise to the level of excessive force necessary to state a § 1983
 6 claim for violation of a constitutional right. As the United States Supreme Court recognized in 7 Graham v. Connor, “‘Not every push or shove, even if it may later seem unnecessary in the peace of a
 8 judge’s chambers,’ violates the Fourth Amendment.”⁵¹ Belcher-Bey’s experience is similar to—if not 9 less forceful than—the one examined by the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals in Foster v.
 10 Metropolitan Airports Commission. Foster was arrested after he refused to move his car from the 11 Minneapolis/St. Paul International Airport unloading zone. He claimed he was pulled from his car, 12 handcuffed, pushed against a wall twice on the way to the detention area, and remained in handcuffs
 13 for two hours while the officers ran a warrant and identification check.⁵² He testified that the too-tight 14 handcuffs were both unnecessary and caused nerve damage in his arms, but he offered no medical 15 records to corroborate his injury claim.⁵³ The district court granted summary judgment against Foster
 16 and the circuit court affirmed, reasoning:

17 We do not believe that Foster’s allegations of pain as a result of being handcuffed, 18 without some evidence of more permanent injury, are sufficient to support his claim of 19 excessive force . . . Although in hindsight such force might not have been necessary, 20 we are not here to judge the officer’s conduct from hindsight, but rather to place

21 ⁴⁸ Doc. 1 at 11.

22 ⁴⁹ Doc. 38 at 6 (undisputed fact #6).

23 ⁵⁰ Id. (undisputed fact #11).

24 ⁵¹ Graham v. Connor, 490 U.S. 386, 396 (quoting Johnson v. Glick, 481 U.S. 1028, 1033 25 (1973)).

26 ⁵² Foster v. Metro. Airports Comm’n, 914 F.2d 1076, 1078 (1990).

27 ⁵³ Id. at 1082.

ourselves in the shoes of a reasonable officer under the circumstances.⁵⁴

The Ninth Circuit followed Foster in Arpin v. Santa Clara Transportation Agency and upheld a district court's order granting summary judgment against the plaintiff on an excessive-force claim arising from her contention that an officer "handcuffed [her], twisting [her] left arm behind her with enough force to lift her off the ground and break her watch band."⁵⁵ The panel reasoned that Arpin did not sustain her summary-judgment burden because she offered no proof of actual injury:

Arpin's conclusory allegations unsupported by factual data are insufficient to defeat the County Defendants' summary judgment motion. Arpin's claim of injury is equally unsupported as she does not provide any medical records to support her claim that she suffered injury as a result of being handcuffed. Because Arpin failed to meet her burden of proof of providing specific facts to show that the force used was unreasonable or that she sustained actual injuries, the district court did not err in granting summary judgment to the County Defendants on Arpin's claim of unreasonable force.⁵⁶

Belcher-Bey's alleged injuries are consistent with those claimed by Foster and Arpin, and—like those unsuccessful excessive-force claimants—she lacks admissible medical records or other evidence to demonstrate that she sustained actual or more permanent injuries that might approach the level necessary to state a constitutional violation. Accordingly, Belcher-Bey has failed to meet her burden of proof of providing specific facts to show that the force Officer Brown used was unreasonable or excessive. Defendants are also entitled to summary judgment in their favor on her excessive force claim.⁵⁷

C. LVMPD Is Also Entitled to Summary Judgment Because There Is No Evidence That Brown's Challenged Conduct Was the Result of a Municipal Policy, Practice, or Custom.

Finally, the LVMPD is entitled to summary judgment on Belcher-Bey's claims against it for ⁵⁴ Id. at 1082–83.

⁵⁵ Arpin, 261 F.3d at 918.

⁵⁶ Id. at 922.

⁵⁷ Because I grant summary judgment based on the undisputed facts and plaintiff's failure to satisfy her summary-judgment burden, I do not reach Brown's separate, three-sentence, conclusory argument that he is entitled to qualified immunity. See Doc. 38 at 13, lines 14-17.

the separate and independent reason that there is no evidence to support a municipal-liability claim against the department for Officer Brown's actions. Because there is no respondeat superior liability under § 1983, in Monell v. New York City Department of Social Services, the United States Supreme Court "held that civil rights plaintiffs suing a municipal entity" like the police department under § 1983 "must show that their injury was caused by a municipal policy or custom."⁵⁸ In short, Monell recognizes that "'a municipality cannot be held liable' solely for the acts of others, e.g., 'solely because it employs a tortfeasor,'" but it "may be held liable 'when execution of a government's policy or custom inflicts the injury.'"⁵⁹ The policy or custom must be the moving force behind the alleged constitutional violation.⁶⁰

Belcher-Bey never alleges—let alone points to any evidence that demonstrates—that any LVMPD policy, practice, or custom inflicted the injuries she claims.⁶¹ Thus, to the extent that she intended to state her claims against LVMPD, the evidence plainly fails to support any municipal-liability theory, and summary judgment on all claims against LVMPD is warranted.

Conclusion

Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED, ADJUDGED, and DECREED that defendants Las Vegas Metropolitan Police Department and Eric Brown's motion for summary judgment [Doc. 38] is GRANTED. Judgment is entered in favor of the defendants and against Belcher-Bey.

Because the entry of judgment on Belcher-Bey's claims terminates this suit, the Clerk of Court is instructed to CLOSE this case and consolidated case 2:12-cv-1909-JAD-CWH.

DATED March 20, 2015.

Jennifer A. Dorsey
United States District Judge

⁵⁸ L.A. Cnty., Cal. v. Humphries, 562 U.S. 29, 30 (2010) (citing Monell v. N.Y.C. Dep't of Social Servs., 436 U.S. 658 (1978)).

⁵⁹ Humphries, 562 U.S. at 36 (quoting Monell, 436 U.S. at 691, 694).

⁶⁰ Villegas v. Gilroy Garlic Festival Ass'n, 541 F.3d 950, 957 (9th Cir. 2008).

⁶¹ See generally Doc. 1 at 9–13.